Two In One

Resolved:
Indiana Purdue
Universities,
Ft. Wayne Campus, has
Shed her image
As an "extension" of
The mother universities
And become instead
A "two in one"
University;
Combining the best, from the best,
And discarding the rest.

Club Call-Out

Each semester the Student Union Board organizes the Club Call-Out. This is the means by which a club is able to present its objectives and members to the student body, hoping to attract new members to their group. During this two day period students may question the members of their activities about requirements for membership.

PIT is always a favorite organization.

Politics at the Ft. Wayne Campus

The Young Democrats attempt to lure Marc Wells into their camp.

Who's the One?

As on all campuses, politics played an interesting part of the '68-69 year. The Young Democrats, Young Republicans, YAF, and the third party politic brought in a number of candidates of local, state, and national prominence. Many of those who came on campus held some enlightening question and answer periods with the students and faculty. Others used the same standard cliches of past campaigns.

Brenda Kruse was on the winning bandwagon.

E. Ross Adair was reelected from the fourth district.

Marcus Raskin tried to stir some enthusiasm for his third party.

Mmm, that was good!

Penny Carnival Receipts Go to Charity.

The Penny Carnival, sponsored by the Student Union Board, is the annual charity event on campus. Student organizations create, build, and man booths, charging a minimal price for entrance. In addition to the money that is given to a local organization, students "adopt" children from the Ft. Wayne Children's Home. They are then squired around the campus for the evening and entertained at the various booths.

The much-celebrated Dickens Dinner is to become an annual event of the University Singers. Initiated this past year by Dr. Harper, director, it was well received by the several hundred that attended it. The Singers and Director Harper spent weeks in researching and practicing the songs which were popular in Dickens' era. During the dinner the Singers, dressed in authentic costumes, strolled among the tables and entertained the guests.

Project Abelard

Students carry Ft. Wayne flags to legislature.

Project Abelard which was organized and led by Joe Tonsing, Ron Rice, and Steve Pettyjohn, was and is an attempt to familiarize the community with IU-PU and to keep the Indiana Legislature aware of the needs of this campus. Abelard leaped to prominence in campus affairs as the legislature was called to session. Students and administrators went to Indianapolis and visited with the legislators and the governor. With the co-operation of the local media, the Abelard story was presented accurately and as it was meant to be.

PURDUE UNIVERSITY CENTENNIAL YEAR 1969

100

Man's first steps on the moon, left by Neil A. Armstrong, will remain forever as a magnificent and historic event which occurred during the 100th birthday year of Purdue University . . . his alma mater.

Purdue has become known as the "Mother of Astronauts" since, in addition to Armstrong, it salutes such other famous alumni as Eugene A. Cernan, and the late Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom, and the late Roger B. Chaffee.

Purdue has been deeply involved in the nation's space program from the very beginning. It enrolls more students in science courses than any other American university. As Indiana's land-grant university, Purdue has not only fulfilled its commitment to teach agriculture and the mechanical arts but has widened its educational horizons to include the full spectrum of the humanities, arts and sciences, engineering, technology, pharmacy, and veterinary medicine. Today it is 16th in size among the 2,100 U.S. colleges and universities.

President Frederick Hovde has said, "If a university can recount with pride any of its contributions over a given span of years, even a century of life and activity, it is the dedication, involvement, concern and effort on the part of it's people."

" 'In all schemes of education, let us not forget that man is more important than his work. The engineer must be swifter than his engine, the plowman wiser and deeper than his furrow, and the merchant longer than his yardstick. In education, culture must ever stand before knowledge and character before artisanship. The highest result of education is manhood,' noted Emerson White, second president of Purdue University."

"This is the ultimate measure of a university, and this is at the heart of the thrust of Purdue. Its steady beat throughout 100 years of significant history has sent forth man in his fullest sense, the lifeblood of our society, into our state, nation, and world," Hovde concluded.

Purdue University, with its feet firmly planted in the present but with eyes and hands extended to the future, will continue to devote its efforts on behalf of the citizens of Indiana.

Mr. Lou Culp and Dr. Turner look for last minute photos.

A Special note of thanks to these individuals who gave so much time and effort. Their invaluable aid and encouragement kept the editor plodding when all appeared doomed.
Thanks
